Somewhat we will da And, look, when I am king, chum thou of me The earldom of Hereford, and all the movables Whereof the king my brother was possessed. Richard III. Rear-admiral Blcewater found Sir Gervaise Oakei pacing a large dressing-room, quarter-deck fashion, with as much zeal as if just released from a long sitting, on official duty, in his own cabin. As the two officers were perfectly familiar with each others personal habits, neither deviated from his particular mode of indulging his ease; but the last comer quietly took his seat in a large chair, disposing of his person in a way to show he intended to consult his comfort, let what would happen. Bluewater, commenced Sir Gervaise, this is a very foolish affair of the Pretenders son, and can only lead to his destruction. I look upon it as altogether unfortunate. That, as it may terminate. No man can tell what a day, or an hour, may bring forth. I am sure, such a rising was one of the last things have been anticipating, down onder, in the Bay of Biscay. I wish, with all my heart, we had never left it, muttered Sir Gervaise, so low that his companion did not hear him. Then he added, in a louder tone, Our duty, however, is very simple. We have only to obey orders; and it seems that the young man has no naval force to sustain him. We shall probably...
